LEADING IN THE AGE OF DATA

Leaders must understand how to balance innovative activities and sustainable performance.

The flood of data — and data analytics courses — has created pressure to ‘know more’ before making decisions. At the same time, the pace of business continues to accelerate toward the speed of light. But, does more data mean better information and better outcomes? This course is designed for mid-to-senior level executives who need a clear, easy-to-apply process for determining which information is needed, where to get it, and how to apply it to the decisions that drive value creation for their organization. Being able to effectively navigate through conflicting data to determine which is accurate and relevant to the decision has never been more important.

This program enables you to resolve many of the business decisions you’re challenged to address each day. Get ready to learn:

• Balance financial and non-financial metrics
• Determine the best blend of innovation investment with practices designed for sustainable performance
• Uncover the most effective non-traditional levers to drive value creation for your particular business
• Set the targets and metrics that will drive the right behaviors and optimize value creation

You’ll leave this program as an informed decision-maker with a solid grip on what data to use to provide better outcomes for your organization. Your back-to-work action plan can be implemented immediately to enable your company to be more agile and resilient.

INDIVIDUAL BENEFITS

• Better assess the long-term value of decisions
• Make better decisions with less data

CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Associate Professor of Accounting

Christopher Williams is an associate professor of accounting, a Michael and Joan Sakkinen Faculty Fellow, and faculty director of the accounting PhD program. He received his PhD from the Kenan-Flagler Business School at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and he received both a master’s degree and BS in accounting from the Marriot School of Management at Brigham Young University.

Professor Williams’ research focuses on understanding the role of accounting information in creating and resolving risk and uncertainty in both capital markets and financial institutions. His work has been published in leading accounting journals and presented in front of international accounting standard setters and members of the Federal Reserve. His recent work focuses on how discretionary accounting choices made by banks affect both the risk of the individual bank and the bank’s contribution to systemic risk. Since coming to Michigan Ross, Professor Williams has taught financial statement analysis to both MBA and Master of Accounting students.

GWEN YU
Associate Professor of Accounting

Gwen Yu is an associate professor of accounting. Her research focuses on how accounting information affects real economic outcomes, especially in an international setting. Professor Yu’s work has been published in top peer-reviewed journals such as The Accounting Review and The Journal of Financial Economics, and has been discussed in The New York Times, The Financial Times, on CBS Money Watch, and in other financial press outlets. She is on the editorial board of The Accounting Review.

With an extensive background at both Ross and Harvard Business School, Professor Yu has experience in Executive Education, MBA, and doctoral programs. She has provided executive education to a wide range of firms and authored many cases that are used around the globe.

Professor Yu holds a PhD in accounting from the University of Michigan, where she also earned a master’s degree in applied economics. Prior to joining Ross, she was a faculty member at Harvard Business School in the Accounting and Management unit. Before pursuing her graduate studies, she worked at McKinsey & Company and the global reinsurer Swiss Re.

A WORLD-CLASS EXPERIENCE

We strive to make every aspect of your program a world-class experience, from our architecturally stunning facilities to our state-of-the-art technology. Our program directors work closely with faculty before, during, and after the program to ensure you achieve your objectives. Program managers facilitate a seamless transition between classroom and off-site activities and assist with anything you might need — ensuring your focus is on learning, not logistics. Finally, our fabulous culinary and hospitality staff are dedicated to providing high-quality dining and accommodations.

For specific program questions or concerns contact Connie Lareau, Managing Director via email at: rossexeced@umich.edu or she may be reached at 734.763.1000.

“What you measure changes people’s incentives. Companies cannot, and should not, measure every activity inside the firm. The more important question is whether your company has a system in place that promotes long-term value creation.”

—Gwen Yu, Associate Professor of Accounting
